

Sanibel: Join COTI Members & Friends at Annual Meeting

COTI Members & Friends
Gather March 30, 2016
Stay Informed, Inspired & Involved

Speaker John Cassani,
Chair, Southwest Florida
Watershed Council

Please Plan to Attend
the COTI Annual Meeting

When:

Wednesday, March 30, 9:00 A.M.

Where:

Sanibel Community House,
2173 Periwinkle Way

Topic:

Water Quality Challenges for

Sanibel & the Calooshatchee Watershed

At the COTI Annual Meeting you can hear about these challenges when water expert John Cassani addresses the issue as Keynote Speaker at the March 30th Annual Meeting of the Committee of the Islands. See John's credentials and experience below.

There will also be a discussion of other Sanibel issues, including traffic congestion. And the "COTI Citizen of the Year" will be awarded

The COTI Annual Meeting is open to the public, and we urge all Sanibel residents and visitors to attend and hear these important issues discussed.

Speaker John Cassani

John Cassani is especially well-qualified in the area of water quality. Since 1978, he has worked in Southwest Florida as a water resource manager and water conservation advocate. After retiring as Deputy Director of the Lee County Hyacinth Control District in 2014, John has continued his research interests as an adjunct member of the Graduate Faculty at Florida Gulf Coast University, Department of Marine and Ecological Sciences.

Continued advocacy on water issues

John holds a B.S degree in Fisheries and Wildlife from Michigan State University and a M.S. from Central Michigan University in Biology. Over his professional career, John has authored more than 25 peer reviewed journal articles, two book chapters and edited a book on managing aquatic vegetation.
